

Dear Diana Skye

I am 23 and a gay male. I have been with my boyfriend for 6 years. We have never had sex, we are not affectionate anymore and I think he may be interested in cheating on me. In 2017 I learned we may be incompatible because in our relationship we are both bottoms. Right now he is living with me and my family. It seems like he is buried pretty deeply in my life. If I try to break up with him my mother actually may not let me tell him to find somewhere else to live.

Recently one of my friend's saw him on Grindr. Apparently he wants to find a top to basically completely submit to. With him cheating on me and how unhappy I feel is this relationship worth the opportunity cost on my life anymore?

Sometimes I fantasize about a friend who lives in another city. I also sometimes feel a little depressed because when a lot of my friends left for College from Trenton. I stayed here and my life got pretty stagnant.

What should I do? I do not think I can continue on like this!

Geoff Anonymous